The more one statiles the report of the special committee of the Civil Service Reform League the more prominently stands out the fact that Mr Cleveland has proved a signal failure from a reform standpoint ough a desperate effort is made to smooth over this disagreeable fact. The significance of this report will be more fully appreciated when it is remembered that the members of this committee had every incentive to make the most of the situation, they having practically staked their reputations on Mr. Cleveland's adherence to the reform they profess to ad- Contral thereis of applorists and seek to nailiets the various sins of commission and omis sion it slouply shows how far Mr. Cleveland has strayed from the path they had

WINTER'S LAST GREAT STURM.

Not So Severe a Storm in New England for Ten Years

BOSTON, April 2. At an early hour last night a violent snow storm set in very gonerally throughout New England, accompanied, particularly along the coast, by a beavy gale. Reports from Gloucester, Provincetown and other prominent ports, indicate that the serm has been the most severe for many years, if not altogether without precedent. For twenty-six hours the wind has maintained a velocity of from 40 to 80 miles an hour. From eight to twelve or eighteen inches of snow have failen and many reports have been received of damage to buildings and trees from the weight of snow. At Block Island the gale was simply terrific and the beach is strewn with wreckage from a schooner which went ashore at the breakwater on Friday. The Old Colony boat did not leave Fall River for New York.

Because of the Terrific Ses Outside. Provincetown reports that the weather is still so thick that lights cannot be seen 500 yards. The harbor is full of vessel which are supposed to be riding out the gale in safety, as no reports of disaster have been received them.

The Guests Escape in the Scantiest

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2. Immediately on receipt of the news of the burning of hotel De Monte, Monterey, this morning the Southern Pacific Raliroad Company made prompt arrangements to bring the guests to this city. The first train load arrived at 130 A. M. and another about 2.50. The scene displayed in the richly furnished coaches of scanti y clad ladies, with dishevelled hair and trightened looks, was a peculiar one. Another brain load arrived peculiar one. Another train load arrived an hour later, bringing the rest of the guests. Friends and relatives were at the depot to meet them. Some carried bun-dles of necessary articles of wearing appar-el, with which to envelop the forms of those unfortunates who had been compell-ed to leave the hotel without ceremony, while others were present to assure them-selves that their relatives and "If you don't him to good." completely master of the situation "If you don't like it, go and be d—d to you 'is his simple inswer to the remonstrances of the infortated voyager. And then you mustified the or trek on into the unhostelled wilderness. On this occasion however, John fared well enough. To begin with he know the owners of this place, who were very civil people if approached in a humble spirit and, furthermore, he found everybody in such a state of unpleasurable excluence in that they propes a approached in number spirit and, furthermore, he found everybody in such a state of unpleasurable excitement that they were only too glad to get another haglishman to talk the matters over with Not that their information amounted to much, how over There was a rumor of the Brooker's Spruit disaster and other rumors of the in vestment of Pretoria, and of the advance of arge bodies of Boers to take possession of the pass over the Drakensburg, known as Lang's Nek, but there was no definite intelligence. "You won't get into Pretoria said one melancholy man 'so it's no use trying The Boers will just eatch you and kill you and there will be an end of it. You had botter leave the girl to look after burself and go back to Moo fouten? But this was not John's view of the matter "Well," he said, "at any rate, I'll have a try." Indeed, be had a sort of buildog sentiment about he in that led him to bellove that if he made up his much to do a thing, he would do it somehow unless he should be physically in capacitated by encumstances beyond his own or the some of the same of t control. It is wonderful how far a mood of this sort will take a man. Indeed, it is the widespread possession of this sentiment that has made langtand what she is. Now it is beginning to die down and be legislated out of our national character, and the results are already commencing to appear in the incipfent docay of our power. We cannot gov orn Ireland It is beyond us, let Ireland have home rule! We cannot cope with our imperial responsibilities, let them be east off, and so on. The Englishmen of fifty years ago did hot talk like this. Well, every nation becomes emisculated sooner or later, that seems to be the universal fate, and it appears that it is our lot to be emasculated, not by the want of law, but by a plethora of it. This country was made, not by governments, but noonly in despite of them by the indopendent efforts of a series of individuals. The tan dency nowadays is to merge the individual in the covernment. 84 Hawley St., Boston, Hasx. GENUINE ROLLER, and our fife Boller is Standard.

[WHOLESALE.] efforts of a series of individuals. The tan dency nowadays is to merge the individual in the government, and to limit and even forcibly destroy personal enterprise and responsibility. Everything is to be legislated for or legislated against. The system is only in lies bad as yet. When it blooms the leminate will lose touch of its individual atoms and become a vast, soulless machine, which will first get out of order, thus break down, and, last of all, break up. We owe more to sturdy, determined, unconvincible Englishmen like John Niel than we realize, or partups, should be willing to acknowledge in these enlightmed days.
